Thinking Out Loud

H. M. L.

All those who sneeze, and this is the sneezing season, may be classified into two kinds: extroverts and introverts. Your extrovert explodes noisily, heartily and too frequently, carelessly, with no regard to present company or direction. He sprays his germs over the just and the unjust. He showers the washed and unwashed with the bacterial debris and overplus of his malady.

On the other hand your introvert sneezer has learned to direct his explosion inward. It is a simple trick. Tightly compress the lips, as the sneeze begins to rise. The explosion is then muffled, almost noiseless. A myriad army of cold or influenza germs attempting to escape in a fine sneeze spray, is forced to retreat. The lungs, the diaphragm, the head, the respiratory passages are all cleared by this intense and inverted sneeze. Exhibitionists of course will object to being cheated of a showy and noisy method of attracting public attention. And it does require an inhibition, practice and a well-bred desire not to be a public nuisance, to sneeze inwardly. As the world grows more crowded, however, and more sanitary laws are passed, we surmise the day is not far distant when an extrovert sneezer, letting himself go in crowded public places, will be cited to appear at the city hall and put down at least as much cash as is now levied for parking overtime.

Time was, a half century ago, when all sneezing was of an extrovert type. In fact sneezing, like spitting tobacco juice, was elevated into a kind of bucolic art, a folk custom. We can well remember old grandmothers teaching the small fry to make the words: "God Bless Yuh!" ride out on top of the sneeze. The hired men on the ranch had other words and exclamations, some profane and some, sad to state, obscene, with which they topped off a real he-man's sneeze, that sprayed half the bunk house. A hearty sneeze like a hearty laugh was considered a personal virtue, indicating an honest, open nature.

But science has discovered that extrovert sneezing is a very bad, one might say, filthy practice. Colds are, perhaps, the most contagious sickness of humanity. Not only that but they are the scouts and spies of a large army of ills. They search out the weaknesses of humanity, in order that the Grim Reaper may have an easy approach and an easy harvest. Every person with a cold is a menace to everyone about him. Common sense and good manners demand that he put a muffler on his sneezes.

While we are on this subject of general hygiene as pertaining to colds, we are going to address a few questions to the various health authorities round about and we would like to have them answered.

We drink ditch water. It flows down from lakes in the high granite. In the lakes it is probably pure, melted snow water. But it comes a good many miles through ditches. It gathers volume from melting snow along the way. Is this water supply safe? Do our health authorities regularly have it analyzed, not only for such disease germs as typhoid, but for bacterial count, as milk is now tested? Are the reservoirs that serve us reguarly cleaned and examined? Does our water supply need chlorination to make it safe for domestic use?

S. P. GETS SIX NEW STEAM-LINED ENGINES

The largest and most powerful streamlined steam locomotives in the world, built to pull Southern Pacific new "Daylight" fliers when they enter service in April between San Francisco and Los Angeles via the Coast Line, have just arrived on the Pacific Coast, it is announced by J. H. Dyer, vice president in charge of operations for the company.

Six in number, the engines were constructed at a total cost of approximately $800,000 in the Lima Locomotive Works, Lima, Ohio, Dyer said. They are being placed in service on trial trips to fit them for their regular runs.

Embodying every modern development for speed, safety and efficiency the Daylight locomotives are strikingly different both in design and appearance. Striped with red and orange, the engines introduce a color scheme that will extend the full length of the 12 car Daylight streamliners to accentuate their speed and sleekness.

Lines of the locomotives are smooth and continuous. The conventional smoke stack and domes do not protrude above the top but are covered by a "skyline" casing that completely shrouds the top of the boiler.

The overall length of the engine and tender is 108 feet, 11 inches, and the weight, loaded, is 821,280 pounds.

HIGH PERCENTAGE OF STUDENTS ILL

Although fifty students are absent because of illness from high school classes today Principal H. E. Kjorlie states that absences have decreased by thirty since last week. Colds and 'flu, of a comparatively light type, are responsible for most of the absences. Miss Nell Bagley is the only teacher ill at this time, others who were out because of illness having returned.

Most of the students who were absent from the Washington grammar school last week because of illness returned today although Principal Walter Carlson reports 76 absences today. There are fewer students absent than last week. No teachers are ill.

GROUPS OF CAMPFIRE GIRLS VISIT LAKE VERA

Two groups of Camp Fire Girls with Miss Margaret Hazard, secretary of the order, came up from Sacramento Sunday and went to their camp on Lake Vera. Another group of Camp Fire Girls from the bay district are planning to visit Camp Augusta on Lake Vera. Plans are for 20 girls to visit camp each week end. The pipe line at the latter camp was thawed out for a considerable distance yesterday but with snow coming down heavily today it is felt the trips will have to be postponed for a time.

NEVADA COUNTY TO GET $152,412 FOR ROADS

Nevada county will receive $152,412 for county roads during the 1937-39 budget, according to a disbursement setup by Governor Frank Merriam.

This figure is expected to be monies which will apply solely on county roads and will be in addition to the funds allocated by the recent Department of Public Works apportionment for the Division of Highways.

Where and in what manner the money is to be distributed was not announced through the Associated Press advices which brought the information to this county.

In all the 58 counties of the state will receive an additional million and one half dollars for county roads and the Nevada county share of $152,412 presages some important work. The money will be derived from motor vehicle registration fees and the gasoline tax.

This afternoon at 2 o'clock Rev. H. H. Buckner and officers of Neva Rebekah Lodge No. 119, I. O. O. F. conducted the funeral of the late Mrs. Alice Martin. Services were held at the Holmes Funeral Home. Burial was at the Odd Fellows cemetery.

ANTLERED STAG STROLLS DOWN MAIN STREET

Tossing his wide spreading horns and stepping lightly down Main street a mighty monarch of the woods visited Nevada City at an early hour Sunday morning. He was first observed on Main street by Mrs. C. Davis as he walked leisurely along looking about, crossed the Plaza and passing between the homes of Mrs. Clutter and Miss Hoskens disappeared into the woods on the Gregory estate. No dogs were about to bother the beautiful creature that had been driven from the higher mountains in search of food.

EULOGY FOR BAY BRIDGE WRITTEN

Many words were spun together to mark the completion and opening of the San Francisco-Oakland bay bridge. Among such commentaries, one of the most moving and eloquent was provided by Edward F. O'Day, widely known California writer, in an article appearing in Motor Land, published by the California State Automobile Association. Taking as a title "Our Via Sacra" (Sacred Way) O'Day wrote:

"Was not the first rainbow the first bridge? Surely that arc of beauty and promise spanning the heavans high above the waters must have stirred the first man who saw it to bold engineering dreams. Deeply implanted within all of us is the impulse to overleap obstacles.

"The soul has always known of bridges between this world and eternity. And so, the bridge of man's making has always possessed a mystic significance.

"In oldest Rome the highest of the priesthood was Pontifex, or the bridge-builder; it was his sacred office to transfigure with religious import the Sublician Bridge that Horatius had defended. In the Middle Ages the Bridge Building Confraternity had a definite spiritual sanction. Indeed, a beautiful French legend attributes divine inspiration to the earliest of the Confraternity's bridges, that across the Rhone at Avignon.

"Thinking man lives by symbols. and a bridge is obviously more than its utility implies. It is the triumph of unity over division. It substitutes continuity for separation. It is nothing more—and nothing less—than a hand-clasp, two hands gripping in mutual helpfulness and understanding.

"A beautiful bridge is one of the noblest works of man, the consummation of art happily married to science. It is blessed by the poetry of clouds. It is fortunate when trees wave over it. It is most beautiful, perhaps, when light makes magic of its nocturne darkness, and still waters lovingly kiss its feet.

"Yes, a bridge is a marriage. Incredible fact! The bridge marriage of San Francisco and Oakland. In the youth of California the union was decreed by Emperor Norton, an inspired fool. Until a few years ago the wedding was regarded as impossible. A fantastic idea, hailed with mockery and laughter.

"Then came the bridge builders, a modern confraternity headed by Purcell, the Pontifex. And behold, the nuptials have been celebrated! A union never to be dissolved, a union promising that San Francisco and Oakland and all the Pacific Coast empire north and south shall increase and multiply.

"From everywhere, by highway and byway, the celebrants came to the marriage feast, wearing the marriage garments of joy. It was a demonstration of the love that neighbors far and near, have for the communities clustered around San Francisco bay.

"These good neighbors had wept for us when we were tried by fire. Now they rejoiced with us in happy abandon; and if there was a tear or so (as there should be in the midst of overpowering happiness) we were wise enough to know that it came from hearts too full for other utterance. We shall never forget that this span is a Via Sacra, a Sacred Way. The Brotherhood of the Pacific Coast has been consecrated."

WATER FREIGHT VALUE 140 MILLION PER MO. HALTED

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 18 -Movement of upwards of $140,000,000 per month of imports and exports which normally move through California ports has virtually ceased because of the maritime strike, and such commodities as are now being shipped are being transported at greatly increased costs to producer, shipper and consumer, according to an analysis of the effects of the maritime strike on California business, just completed by the Research Department of the California Chamber of Commerce.

Under normal conditions, the State Chamber report shows, exports of California products by water average $75,000,000 per month, while average monthly imports aggregate $72,000,000.

According to the analysis of water-borne commerce made by the State Chamber, shipments from California ports to other ports on the Pacific and Atlantic coast totaled $593,549,000 in 1934, a year when business was greatly curtailed, as compared with 1936. In 1936 exports to foreign markets from California amounted to $211,000,000. Foreign importations into the state in 1935 were $122,247,000, and other receipts by water, for the year 1934, were $728,000,000.

FOREIGN MARKETS LOST

Because of the prevailing strike conditions, the State Chamber report brings out, all traffic through California ports have ceased, foreign markets are imperiled and some of these markets may be irrevocably lost.

Reports are being received daily at the offices of the State Chamber from industrial and agricultural organizations throughout California, showing the paralyzing effect of the strike on business, and the enormous cost to the public. In addition, unemployment is rapidly increasing because of enforced shut-down of factories and agricultural activities.

J. L. Nagle, general manager of the California Fruit Exchange, yesterday reported to the State Chamber that at least 2,000 grape and pear growers of the state have suffered losses aggregating $500,000 because of disruption of foreign export markets, and in addition, both California and foreign buyers have lost at least $200,000 through increased transportation charges by rail from California to Vancouver and Atlantic ports for re-shipment abroad.

LAMB SHIPMENTS STOPPED

Although normally 10,000 lambs per month are supplied through Pacific coast ports to the boat trade, and to the Hawaiian islands, such shipments have ceased entirely, according to a report from W. P. Wing, secretary of the California Wool Growers Association.

"The crippling of purchasing power in other industries," Wing said, "has curtailed meat consumption in the large centers of population on the Pacific Coast. Turkey growers, with a larger supply than usual, found their market on the Pacific Coast curtailed due to not only the Hawaiian and boat trade being cut off, but also because of reduced buying power of the public on account of the strike. Lamb feeders are losing from $1. to $1.50 each on every lamb they sell today. With about 5,000,000 lambs on feed in the United States, the loss to the industry is enormous."

SHIPPING COSTS INCREASED

An instance of the increased cost of shipping is shown by a report received from Sonoma county. Apples shipped from that county to the United Kingdom cost normally 77½c per box, but the necessity of shipping by rail to Vancouver and other ports, for trans-shipment abroad, has increased the cost to $1.15 per box.

Interests of more than 4,000 California raisin growers, and more than 400 employees in the industry are seriously threatened by continuance of the strike, the Sun Maid Raisin Growers Association reported to the State Chamber. "It is impossible" the association said, "to estimate at this time the amount or degree of permanent loss of markets, but foreign fruit is now being given marked advantage in the United Kingdom and on the continent."

AGRICULTURE HIT HARD

According to a report made by the California Fruit Exchange, the loss to its member growers aggregates $100,000 in trans-Pacific business, and greater losses may accrue because of interruption of shipments and resulting market adjustments. In addition, the increased shipment costs to eastern markets are estimated at $40,000.

Losses to agriculture resulting from cutting off export markets during November and December, when heaviest shipments normally occur, are exceedingly heavy, the State Chamber report brings out. Much of this damage is due to loss of foreign markets and the extent to which these markets are being lost is indicated by figures compiled by the State Chamber showing the percentage of crops normally exported. These percentages are as follows: barley, 30 per cent; rice, 15 per cent; cotton, 90 per cent; apples, 40 per cent; apricots, 38 per cent; peaches, 15 per cent; pears, 27 per cent; prunes, 52 per cent; grapes, 25 per cent; grapefruit, 17 per cent; oranges, 10 per cent; and canned asparagus, 15 per cent.

Lawrence Johnson Is Tried For Murder

The trial of Lawrence Johnson, accused of murdering his wife, is being heard in the superior court today with Judge Raglan Tuttle on the bench. Attorney W. E. Wright is attorney for the defense. Twelve jurors, two women and ten men were chosen by eleven o'clock this forenoon and questioning of witnesses started at once.

At the reopening of court at 1:30 Attorney Wright questioned Coroner L. R. Jefford as to the house where the crime allegedly took place. Sheriff C. J. Tobiassen was called next to answer as to the size of the gun used, stating it was a 32 automatic, and he identified it. He gave the date of October 7, 1936 as the time he arrested Johnson, returning the next day to find the bullet on the floor in the two room cabin at Rough and Ready. Miles Coughlin was next called and stated he took the questions and answers of a statement between Johnson and the officers later typed it out. Sheriff Tobiassen was again called to identify the statement and signatures.

Johnson's confession was read by District Attorney Vernon Stoll after some questioning by Attorney Wright.

Johnson was called to stand and stated he has been a resident of Nevada county for six years, being employed by the state highway department for two years. He was working as a road foreman at the time of the alleged murder. He occupied a cabin at Rough and Ready and married his wife in June of 1936. Several months before his marriage he had been appointed scout master of a troop of scouts. His testimony was clear and straightforward, giving all questions in a concise manner. Under questioning of Attorney Wright he related the events of the day preceeding and leading up to the tragedy. He claimed his wife was drunk after a day the two spent in Grass Valley.

She id not want to live at Rough and Ready, near his work but insisted she wanted to live in Grass Valley. She threatened to leave him and would be gone when he returned from work in the morning and that in the spring she was going to Alaska with her sister, who resided in Grass Valley. He stated she kept repeating the threats, calling him vile names until he lost his head, picked the gun from the floor and didn't remember hearing the shot as it was fired to kill is wife. He said the gun had been kept on the floor near the bed, about a month, because his wife complained of prowlers about the cabin.

When questioned he related he had finished dressing, as he had been preparing to go to work, and had gone to town and phoned to the sheriff to come and get him. He returned to the cabin and waited the arrival of officers. Johnson was on the stand when this newspaper went to press.

Jurors selected from the 50 called were George Falmbigl, Glenn Cleland, Dan Treanor, Fred Foote, J. P. Muscardini, William Polkingorn, Mrs. Elizabeth Van Duzer, Joseph D. Mansau, Josep D. Archibald, Robert P. Cannon, Mrs. Mildred Nankervis and M. F. Kelliher. Several jurors were called from Truckee and came over on the train on account of the severe snow storm which has been coming down since early morning.

The prosecution will ask the death penalty, holding that the murder was premediated. Johnson seeks to refute this with the contention that the killing was manslaughter, committed in the heat of anger.

TRAFFIC DEATH TOLL GOING UP

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 18. — Two hundred and sixty eight more persons lost their lives in accidents on California's highways in the first eleven months of 1936, than in the same period last year, Ray Ingels, director of the State Motor Vehicle Department, announced today. The total for the first eleven months of this year was given as 2773 as against 2505 for 1935.

With three counties yet to report the deaths for November were given as 318, an increase of fifteen over November, 1935.

MOISTURE IN SNOW WILL BE MEASURED

Leland Smith, division of Forestry of the Tahoe National forest, Mr. Stephenson and Mr. Pagent, the latter from the state division of water resources, were in a party of four that went out this afternoon to measure moisture content of snow. Instructions in measuring were given by the state man. The Tahoe National forest will maintain seven snow courses for the state according to plans mapped out this forenoon at the local office.

DICK POWELL GIVES CCC BOYS TOBOGGAN RIDE

MARIPOSA, Jan. 18. — Winter sports, always thrilling and especially so to those who are not accustomed to them, held additional pleasure for enrollees of the Bootjack CCC camp when 125 of the youths were taken to Yosemite Valley Sunday in company trucks under the supervision of Lieut. and Mrs. Charles Miller and Dr. William Hogan, camp surgeon.

Reason for the added enjoyment was not only the fact that rides on the toboggan were donated, but also the identity of the benefactor, who was Dick Powell, motion picture star. Winter vacationing in the park with his recent bride, Joan Blondell.

According to members of the party who made the trip- envious eyes were cast on the toboggan ride by the group upon their arrival. Considerable dismay was felt because each descent down the slide required ten cents, with dimes admittedly scarce. When spirits were at the lowest, Powell asked if he might be allowed to purchase tickets for all the boys Monday's mail was said to have been unusually heavy with letters relating the thrill of meeting celebrities, designed for relatives in Oklahoma.

TWO ARRAIGNED FOR PASSING BAD CHECKS

Charles Barton and Fred Wolff, charged with issuing fictitious checks, were arraigned in superior court Saturday and their trials set for February 16t and this morning at 10 o'clock respectively. Lynne Kelly will defend Barton, and Harry M. McKee, appointed by the court, will defend Wolff.

The Last Big Strike

Once the ports of California are open again to commerce, you may be sure of one thing. They will stay open. Never again will the state be tied up in knots by a long, drawn out maritime deadlock.

The reason is that the people are determined it shall not happen again. Throughout California they have felt the disastrous effects, closed plants, blockaded crops, and general disruption from stoppage of imports and exports normally worth $120,000,000 a month. And the "people's movement" is under way, both in Congress and the Legislature, in the form of bills to set up machinery insuring permanent peace.

What will finally emerge is still a question. But the machinery considered fairest to all parties is a permanent body like the National Mediation Board which operates so successfully for the railroads.

This board has functioned for ten years without a serious rail tieup. When a dispute arises, it assists in mediation; if that is refused it appoints an emergency board, and not for 30 days thereafter can a walkout occur. These three steps inevitably bring settlement, without coercion anywhere.

Too long has government transportation policy dealt solely with railroads. Some of it is good, as in this case; much of it is bad, as in the case of rate-freezzing edicts that squash initiative. There is urgent need for equalizing. The bad regulation should be taken off railways; the good should be applied also to airways, highways, waterways.

But whether ship strike settling machinery comes as part of national transportation policy or in some other way, it will come. This is the last of the big maritime deadlocks. The people won't stand for another.—Contributed.

Forgotten Man

Jobs are more plentiful, payrolls are larger, depression is fading and the horizon ahead is bright. But there is still a forgotten man in America. Who is he?

Walk up to the average citizen and ask him this question, and nine chances out of ten his first guesses will be wrong. The forgotten man is not the one who is still on relief, the wandering transient, or the one who is crippled or blind. These are being remembered, in headlines, in editorials, and in legislative chambers.

Actually, the forgotten man is the average citizen himself.

He is the man who earns a moderate salary, owns or perhaps is still paying for his home, has a small car and maybe two or three children. He is the man who pays his taxes uncomplainingly, works cheerfully at his job, is thankful he is an American, and trusts that everything will come out all right eventually.

He is the man who belongs to no "faction," who is not out trying to change the world overnight, or to grab all he can for himself at the expense of everyone else.

He is the man who stands by hopefully while various groups fight for this or for that; and whichever side wins, it is usually he who foots most of the bill.

Meet Mr. Average Citizen, the forgotten man of today. —Contributed.

"MEET ME AT THE MANX"

Heart of Mrs. Mattson

(By KATHERINE BRAITHWAITE)

Dear God! This deed could not have been your plan
To take my baby son away from me,
And leave my life an empty weary span
Which seems, far longer than eternity.

You did not wish that this poor soul of mine
To be forever, scarred and torn,
Instead would You have claimed through ways divine
His life, within my womb, ere, he was born.

I could have said, "Thy will be done" and slept;
I could endure the loss of his sweet face,
And hide the tear-stained places where I wept
If You but had him safe in Your embrace.

If my wild sobs disturb the peace of dawn,
My tired weary feet, swift pace the sod,
I will remember I am still Your pawn—
I still retain my faith in You, dear God.

Then if above an empty bed I bend,
When night time shadows swell my growing fear,
My anguished heart will pray for You to lend
A soothing Hand, that I may know You're near.

STATE PURCHASE OF CARQUINEZ BRIDGE BEFORE CHAMBER

The Nevada City Chamber of Commerce will meet this evening. Among matters to be discussed is that of inaugurating a movement throughout northern California, especially among chambers of commerce, to provide a way for the state to take over the toll bridge across Carquinez strait. George Calanan returning Saturday from San Francisco with five persons in his car reports that it cost $1.05 to cross the Carquinez bridge and only 65 cents to cross the San Francisco bay bridge. He believes the state should take over Carquinez on some basis which will assure a reduction in the tolls. Anybody who has had similar experience will agree with him. It is reported that one or two bills have been, or are about to be introduced in the state legislature calling for the purchase of the Carquinez bridge by the state under a revenue bond issue. The chamber of commerce is expected to get in touch with Senator Jerry Seawell and Assemblyman Jesse Mayo and find out what steps have been taken in this direction. It is believed that most of northern California counties would be heartily in favor of this purchase.

George W. Gildersleeve of Nevada City left Saturday for Napa to be at the bed side of his mother in law who is critically ill. Mrs. Gildersleeve has been with her mother several weeks.

GOLDEN GATE BRIDGE TO OPEN WITH PAGEANT

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 18.—The fullest cooperation of the Army and Navy in the Golden Gate Bridge Fiesta next May, celebrating the opening of the span across the famous Golden Gate, was pledged today by Major General George S. Simonds, U. S. A., commanding the Ninth Corps Area, and Rear Admiral A. St. Clair Smith, U. S. N., commandant of the Twelfth Naval district.

Supervisor Arthur B. Brown, Jr., general chairman, announced that plans are already actively under way for the greatest military and naval demonstration in the west during the fiesta.

General Simonds, in conference with Chief Administrative Officer Alfred J. Cleary, William P. Filmer, chairman of the Golden Gate Bridge and Highway district, and James Reed, general manager of the bridge district, placed the entire army troops and facilities under his command at the disposal of the fiesta committee.

With General Simonds' approval granted, Supervisor Brown disclosed that Crissy Field, within the Presidio military reservation and adjacent to the bridge, would become the center of much of the elaborate pageantry, which is planned for the fiesta.

It will also be the terminus of the spectacular day and night parades that are to be held, and grand stands will be erected there and along Marina boulevard to accomodate thousands of persons.

Parking space for automobiles will be provided at the Presidio and Fort Scott on the San Francisco side and, likewise, at Fort Baker on the Marin county shore, and General Simonds said that military police would be furnished to aid in handling traffic on the reservations.

For the navy, Admiral Smith pledged his help in obtaining every available warship in the United States fleet in Pacific waters for assignment to San Francisco for the bridge opening. He arranged to contact Admiral Arthur J. Hepburn, commander in chief of the fleet, to arrange for the naval participation.

One of the highlights of the fiesta promises to be a great naval parade, with warships from every foreign maritime nation in line, passing through the Golden Gate and under the bridge into the harbor.

The powerful searchlights of the battleships will also be utilized to the fullest extent in the illumination of the bridge and San Francisco bay at night, according to Eric Cullenward, general manager of the fiesta.

CITY BELLE PROPERTY

James Allen, who has a lease on the City Belle property on Grove street in Nevada City has made rapid progress in drifting operations although bad ground was encountered shortly after the drain tunnel was started. The new tunnel is in 150 feet and it is expected the two foot vein carrying good gold values will be contacted next month. A shaft sunk on the Dulac property carried a heavy flow of water necessitating driving a drain tunnel on the Carey property on Deer Creek to unwater the shaft.

SIXTEEN-TO-ONE EXTENSIONS MINE

Superintendent George Hallock, who is developing the Sixteen-to-one Extension mine at Alleghany was a Nevada City vistor yesterday. He stated that crews are still drifting on the Tightner vien. One hundred foot cross cut each way in a northerly and southerly direction from the shaft have been completed In a few days the company will start cross cutting to the west boundary which will be a distance of 600 feet when completed.

CHAMPION CIRCLE

Champion Circle Thimble Club held nomination and election of officers Friday afternoon with 23 members present. Cards were enjoyed after the meeting. Refreshments brought a most delightful afternoon to a close.

Officers elected were: Laura Granholm, president; Neva Schance, vice president; Nellie Coulter, secretary; Nina Gaskin, treasurer; Peggy Flynn, sentinel; financial board, Jane Baker, Nance James and Esther Tremaine. Minnie Young, corresponding secretary. Nettie Sandow will act as installing officer when the new officers are installed sometime in the near future.

James Dolan, local merchant, has been confined to his home on Boulder street for several days. In shoveling snow away from the front of his garage his feet were frozen.

George Calanan spent Friday and Saturday in San Francisco.

FOOTHILL NEWS
BY THE RIDGE RUNNER

NORTH SAN JUAN, Jan. 18.—Dear Editor: Get your mind out of the advertising department for a moment and listen to this one. Knoxville, Tennessee whistlers found out yesterday they are subject to a $50 fine if caught publicly puckering up their lips and whistling "Tra-ra-ra-boom-de-ay," "After the Ball," or "Two Little Girls in Blue."

WPA workers codifying the city's laws, found an unrepealed 1893 ordinance making a misdemeanor of: "singing or whistling superannuated tunes." Honestly, Boss, wouldn't you just know the gentlemen who framed that law would be of the South? Where else in the world would one be arrested for whistling tunes so ancient they should be given a pension on account of old age?

Personally, I never went in for the Boom-de-boom tunes, in my young days. Never much of a cut-up. If, on occasion, my crowd became too frisky it was 23. skidoo. I'd go home in a prudish huff. On the other hand if I were on a ballroom floor and my partner knew all the intricate steps of a dreamy waltz and the orchestra was playing "After the Bail"—Ah! That was something else again. I would just wrap an arm around his celluliod collar, park my gum in a hollow tooth and dance till the soles of my pumps smoked.

Nearly all the songs published before 1900 were pretty and worthwhile listening to, and I'd call it a mean group of City Fathers who would forbid those lovely old songs from being whistled, sung, or danced. I would give a lot to see the faces of those Tennessee gentlemen if they could hear one of our throaty crooners warble "I've Got You Under My Skin" or "You Do the Darndest Things, Baby."

I don't remember much about the "Two Littlee Girls in Blue," but they were mere infants compared to our modern, sophisticated "Beautiful Lady in Blue" who kissed her dancing partner (a perfect stranger) because he looked like somebody she knew. And was she so shocked when she learned of her mistake that she toppled over in a vapor? Not a bit. They strolled out side and sat in his Ford Coupe and all we could see was just "Two Cigarettes in the Dark."

Miss Mabel Tisher Weds Noble McCormack

At Trinity Episcopal church in this city Miss Mabel Tisher and Noble McCormack were married Saturday evening. Rev. Charles Washburn read the marriage ritual. Flowers decorated the church and wedding music was played by Mrs. Betty Martin West. Mrs. Katherine Celio sang "I Love You Truly." The bride wore the conventional white and her only attendant, Miss Florence Tisher her sister, wore pink and blue.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Lila Tisher of Indian Springs and has been employed in Nevada City public schools for the past year. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. R N. McCormack and is a deputy county auditor. Robert J. Steger Jr. Mr. McCormack's brother in law was best man. Hilmer H. Holbrook and Donald Steger were ushers.

A reception for the couple was held at the home of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. N. McCormack on East Broad street before the happy couple departed to an unannounced destination for their honeymoon.

A truck and crew of city employees are removing banks of snow from Commercial street today. It is being shoveled into the truck and dumped into Deer Creek at the Plaza.

March Forward, Banners Flying

The skies above are brighter now,
Few adverse winds are crying,
The New Year calls commandingly,
"March Forward, Banners Flying!"

Are there embattled heights to win?
Then obstacles defying,
Storm every frowning citadel—
"March Forward, Banners Flying!"

If Fortune is at times unkind
Keep right on trying—trying;
She yields to firm, repeated thrusts—
"March Forward, Banners Flying!"

"I am too young to join the ranks,"
Cries one, his worth denying;
The world needs youth today, my lad,
"Marchr Forward, Banners Flying!"

"And I'm too old," another pleads
And sadly speaks of "dying,"
Why, you have just learned how to live—
"March Forward, Banners Flying!"

To every noble victory,
One with the other vying,
Experienced age and eager youth
"March Forward, Banners Flying!"

Come, face the Future fearlessly,
All threats of ill defying,
And "one for all and all for one,"
March Forward, Banners Flying!"

—A. MERRIAM CONNER.

From Aunt Sarah

Here's a luncheon dish that combines the proteins and starches in a most delicious souffle. It is a fine dish for the school child problems for building, carbohydrates for heating and energizing.

Cheese and Rice Souffle

One and one half cups cooked rice.
One and one half cups white sauce.
Three eggs.
One eighth ttaspoon baking soda.
One and one fourth cups American cheese.
(Grated or put through grinder.)
Salt. Pepper.

Season white sauce highly with paprika then add cheese; stir constantly until cheese is melted, turn into rice. Beat egg yolks, stir into cheese mixture, then fold in stiffly beaten white. Put mixture into well oiled baking dish, set in pan of hot water and bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) and bake about 30 minutes.

P. S. And you can get this all ready (except egg whites) anytime. Time for lunch or Sunday supper beat the whites, fold into mixture and put into the oven. This is another of Aunt Sarah's "fool proof" recipes.
